Course Title:	BA202 Taxation
Course Credits:	3 Credits (3-0-6)
Semester:	Semester 1/2026
Section:	026401 and 026402
Curriculum:	Bachelor of Business Administration Program (International Program) (Revised Curriculum, B.E. 2566[2023])

Prerequisite: AC201

Course Description:
The course introduces students to the principles of tax law in Thailand and their application to businesses. This course covers various taxation structures, compliance requirements, and the implications of tax regulations for businesses. The course begins with a comprehensive overview of tax history, theory, tax policy, tax laws, tax administration, and tax dispute resolutions. It then discusses direct taxation in Thailand, including personal income tax, corporate income tax, petroleum income tax, special income tax regimes, inheritance tax, land and building tax, and signboard tax. The discussion will be followed by indirect taxation, including value-added taxes, specific business taxes, stamp duty, excise duty, and customs duty. It ends with business ethics in relation to taxation.

Course Objectives:
By the end of the course, students should understand the role of taxation as a significant source of government revenue and, simultaneously, as a cost to the business. Students should be equipped with a comprehensive understanding of the tax landscape in Thailand covering direct and indirect taxes and its impact on business operations as well as business's ethics in relation to taxation.

Course Learning Outcomes:

1. Students possess core knowledge and a sound understanding of the fundamental principles of taxation and apply them to business transactions (K2)

2. Students possess quality of honesty, sacrifice and self-restraint. Take responsibility for their own action, society and environment (E1)

3. Students are disciplined, follow rules and regulations of their organization and society (E2)

4. Students have a good understanding of Ethics, Ethics Important for Business, and Problem Solving Ethically (E3)

5. Students possess specific knowledge in their chosen major (YLO2)
